TROY, August 23, 1870. Enfeebled by the self-imposed labors of the past week, the Association yesterday took a special train or Saratoga prepared to enjoy all the pleasures supposed to belong to an invitation from the city of froy. From Saturday night after the Convention nad adjourned, until yesterday (Monday) morning few themes were as interesting to the savans as Saratoga." The special train was in waiting at the depot at ten A. M., and the scientists, with their wives, daughters and other fireside appendages, were punctual to the second. The depot swarmed, and immediately as the cars backed up to their station there was a rush to get on board. After waiting half an hour the train moved off and in one hour and a half the wise men INVADED SARATOGA.

Here began the disgraceful features of the excur-tion, which as a whole was one of the worst humbugs ever put upon a body of savans. No one was at the depot to receive them; no carriages were at and to convey them to Congress Hall, and the cour teey of a wretched sidewalk and a dusty road was all that Saratoga could offer. The wise men then had to foot it to Congress Hail, and from one o'clock to four they were at sea in the great ocean of dis-

Dinner had been announced for four o'clock, but the meantime all were fami hed and mad. o eat since eight o'clock" was the mournard on every hand. Savans went over to see Warren Leland and investigate the science ed in running the Grand Union. They interportions and guestions to the itinerant purveyors

The Hon. Henry Runt, leading the way, with his arm affectionately grasping the waist of the hand-come John A. Griswold, defiled into the dining room, while the niggers ganned, the young ladies smiled in derision, and the aged Crossuses stood in wonder. All were soon seated to one of the most unappreciated meals ever offered to a corporate body. Walters were not numerous, though porate body. Walters were not numerous, though demands for them were, and as for that which could southe the scientists, there was little. A gentleman of the highest standing in the Convention came to us in the evening telling of the terrible famine existing at his table; of the short rations; the gentility of the waiters and the beautifully empty dishes. Said he, "Say for me that this dinner was the biggest imposition of the season." Others complianed loudly, and the whole party, without escort, ceremony or tourtesy of any nature, returned to this city at eight A. M., with their noses turned up and their evening turned down at the Saratoga Springs. Numbers of gentlemen told the proprietor of the Troy House that they had lost a good dirner by leaving town.

At none P. M. a grand reception was given at the residence of MR. JOHN M. PRANCIS, editoriof the Troy Times, on Second street, the partors of his elegant mansion were thronged until midnight by the distinguished gentlemen of the Convention, and the wealth, beauty and fashion of Troy participated it the good things of the evening. It was here that these farling in refreshments at Saratogs found pie by in the mast elegant abundance. Wine ran till sate nour, the conversazione was an occasion fall of interest to all. It will be remembered that General Grant held his reception here after having been received by Mr. Francis inself, and that universal significance was attached to the event. Shrewd prophets are predicting the nomination of Mr. Francis for Governor in opposition to Herace Greeley. A stronger under current than one would believe, from the surface of State politics, may land Mr. Francis, as a gubernational candidate, on the shores of an exciting canvass. At a late hour the guest s dispersed highly pleased with the hospitality of their host.

The Convention met this morning at a quarter to eleven o'clock and proceeded with ousiness. Over two hundred spectators were present. A resolution was introduced and referred to the standing committee, which provided for the establishment of an observatory on the Pacific slope, such that observations could be obtained from the highest point in that region. The committee will report at the next annual session.

The following were elected members:—H. A. Pierce, Lansingburg, N. Y.; William H. Hale, Albany; Governor John W. Shaffer, Utah; General B. P. Butler, Lowell, Mass.; John H. Gillespie, Troy, N. Y.; Waiter C. Child, Pittsburg; S. W. Ford, P. Butler, Lowell, Mass.; John H. Ghiespie, Troy, N. Y.; Waiter C. Child, Pittsburg; S. W. Ford, Troy; E. Howe, Baltimore; D. G. Glazier, Hartford; Miss S. L. Blatchiey, New Haven; Miss Helen Storker, Auburn, N. Y.; Miss Mary Keybold, Delaware City; Mrs. Clara G. Gwin, of Boston.

Professor J. M. Silliman, a third of that remarkable family, then read a valuable paper on the spectroscopic examination of the Bessemer name. He entered into an elaborate analysis of two entertaining chemical process, but discovered nothing new in his chemical process, but discovered nothing new in his discussion. Before the conclusion of his address Mr. Silliman was overcome by fainting and was orne from the room. George F. Barker delivered himself of a speech

Clinton Roosevelt, of New York, for many years an elucidator of science and inventor, a poet, a wit, a philosopher and scholar, delivered an able paper, entitled "To Whom is Due the Credit of the Most Important Application of Steam as a Motive Power?" He claimed that the English first made the stationary steam engine; that the Americans gave it its legs to rum—that is, made a locomotive by the conversion of rectainear to the circular motion; but the application of two cylinders and pistons, operating in cranks set at right angles, precisely as are used now on all the locomotive engines in the world, dispensing with the fly wheel and enabling the engine to run up hill. He said that the widow of Nicholas J. Roosevelt, who went down the river in the first steamer ever on the Missussippi, called the New Orleans, and which ran during the earthquake of 1311, is still living. He recounted many salient points in the history of the steam engine, tracing its progress through all its varying victositudes. The idea of propeling vessels by water wheels had occurred to Dr. Franklin, but he rejected them as impracticable. Nicholas J. Roosevelt built the first engines in America. The first cylinder was cast in 1775, in New York, by P. T. Cortemus, grandfuther of the speaker. He had assisted to demolish the statue of George the Third in Bowling Green.

Professor E. C. Pickerning, of Boston, read a paper on the method of representing physical laws by curves. Decimals were defective. He showed the results of experiments made by himself to prepare paper for accurate investigation. But paper when wet expands; common type were therefore used and the paper printed dry.

Professor Stifmson read a paper entitled "A Graphical Discussion of the Various Formulæ Proposed for the Combusation of Humminating Gas, and the Volume of Gas Consumed." He discussed different kinds of burners, and

He said that the existence of twenty-seven species of maritime plants in the great lakes proved this. He called them by name and locality. These plants were originally introduced along an ancient estuary. The piants in the sait springs of New York were introduced in the same way. The pre-glacial flora had been destroyed by the intense cold. He therefore from these and many other clear positions admirably proved that the Continent had been submerged 200 or 300 feet lower than geologists had supposed. In order that botany might have its legitimate effect upon geology he urged that all specimens in that auxiliary science be preserved, with their locality marked.

This paper is very important. Coming from a bold and original geologist it points are perspicuously stated and its conclusions seemingly almost inevitable.

Professor James Hall, the presiding spirit of this Convention, then went into "Fossil Plants of the Hauniton and Cheming groaps," He spoke of their formation. THE COLORED LABOR CONVENTION.

The Gathering of the Delegates at Saratogo Springs-What They Propose to Do-The Interest Manifested in the Work-Fred Douglass and Other "Lights" to be on Hand-The Call and Its Signers.

SARATOGA, August 23, 1870. Here is, indeed, enterprise! Picture to yourself the gathering at this fashionable watering place of the colored gentlemon of distinction in the State, and many out of it, to discuss in solemn conclave all the questions touching the adoption of plans to raise themselves still higher in the social circle and enlarge their privileges in the Satter of labor. Such is now the intention of the leaders of our colored brethren, and to-morrow they set the ball in motion. Why they selected this spot, which has such a strange propensity to exclusive association, is not very clear; but it may be explained, like the political parties, republicans and democrats, or the woman's suffrage agitators, they prefer the atmosphere of dissipation, of firitations and the charm of music, which so inspires the heels and causes the light fantastic toe to tremble, to one of more quietude and where their eloquence would be wasted upon the vacant air. There was interest in such vulgar associations; but that's matter of the past, and now the intellects that gress water as ducks do to the water, or the boy of the period to billiard tables and mint juleps.

The assemblage will be worthy of study. Although particularly designed to advocate the claims of the colored citizens of this State and engineered by men

The assemblage will be worthy of study. Although particularly designed to advocate the claims of the colored citizens of this State and engineered by men from your city, the Convention will have the able advice of many from distant parts, the honest, loyal and corageous of their race, who are looked up to like the "good of the silver bow" by the adoring Greeks. To say the village hall will not resound with eloquence and that the air will not be vocasi with words of wasom is to fail wide of the mark. To be sure it will be rather warm work for these warmish days, but the business cannot be stopped because the thermometer daily diagraces itself by getting high. No doubt, if this and all other conventions were held in the winter there would be a great saving of fuel to our citizens, for such excitements are much better than anthracite or bituminous to keep the blood in a healthy circulation.

Saratoga, in the hour of its mid-summer splender, has many colored citizens—from the shining black, tirough the shade of brown to the yellow that—and these are industrious, and most part, extemplary persons, of course, subject to the incidental weaknesses of human natare. With them the exterment over the coming convention is quiet, yet intense. It is not an unhealthy exhibition of popular energy. Said one of them to me this morning. "the price of liberity is eternal vigilance, and we want to keep our claims—of labor chiefly—before the people; we want the chance of working, and working honestly, and until we have such opportunities we shall never say die." What do you think of that doctrine? Won't it succeed if they keep cool, discuss their great questions calmy and never quarrei with opponents?

New York trade unions, there is a rod pickling for you up here. You won't open your arms and receive the negro citizen, but "shoo fly" him to white aprons and beersteaks and corn dodgers in the dining room and restaurants. The colored State Convention will remark this great wrong, will be incensed thereat and perhaps threaten venigeanc love-making and flirtation for a while and go over to the hall to listen to the eloquent colored citizen as he implores a chance to better his condition in the world. It would be food for reflection, and perhaps estrange her mind for an hour or two from that mystery of human operations—her toilet.

But I append the call for the Convention, and perhaps this better than anything else will give you an idea of what is to come in this wise. It is worth perusal:—

Idea of what is to come in this wise. It is worth perusal:—

THE CALL.

In view of the urgent demands now pressing upon the people of all classes for a proper settlement of the conditions of labor in its various departments, and especially as relates to that portion of the people hitherto deproved of a fair apportionment of its benefits, both as regards the employment of skilled labor and an opportunity to acquire a knowledge of the mechanical branches; and in view, too, of the many avenues necessarily open for such acquirement and employment on the part of those who have controlled the admission of apprentices and workmen in the workshops of the State to the exclusion of the formerly distanciated class, but now happily enfranchised; and in view, too, of the great demand for skilled as well as the controlled of the state of the exclusion of the formerly distanciated class, but now happily enfranchised; and in view, too, of the great demand for or killed as well as offered to the entrapped of the people of the control of the colored cliticate and or regenerated state of society in our now free State and or regenerated state of society in our now free State and well as others interested in the labor question, to assemble at Sargioga, N. Y. on Wednesday, August 24, 1870, for the purpose of adopting such views and plans as shall not only bring out the needs of the people but tend to enlarge the privileges and dignify the position of general labor.

We invite our brethren to assemble and bring with them statements of all persons engaged as artisans, nechanics, farmers, or any other fountrial pursuits of whatever kind, in the several counties, also educational statistics gathered from official or other sources, as well as a list of workshops where workmen are admitted without distinction of color:—We have our brethren to assemble and bring with them statements of all persons engaged as artisans, nechanics, farmers, or any other sources, as well as a list of workshops where workmen are admitted without distinction of

THE PRELATES RETURN.

Bishop Bayley's Reception in Newark. The arrival of the Right Reverend J. Roosevelt Bayley, Bishop of the Diocese of Newark, at his home in the latter city yesterday forenoon, after an absence in Rome and other parts of Europe of over a year, was the occasion of general rejoicing among the faithful. It was the intention to make among the faithful. It was the intention to make the Bishop's return the occasion of some public demonstration—a banquet or reception—but /in deference to his expressed wishes the idea has been abandoned. The reverend gentleman returned full of health and buoyant spirits. He had scarcely disembarked from the Scotia when the sad intelligence was broken to him of the death of his beloved brother, Mr. William Bayley, of this city, whose funeral took place only last Saturday.

It having been announced that a serenade would be tendered the Bishop in the evening an immense assemblage of people, numbering not less than 3,000, gathered last night in front of the cathedral residence, on Bleecker street, and extended to the distinguished prelate a most enthusiastic cead mile fatithe. A band, procured by Fathers Killeen, Ruley and Dalton, piayed "Hail to the Chief" and Dalton, piayed "Hail to the Chief" and other appropriate airs for three-quarters of an hour. In the meantime the appearance of the Bishop on the doorstep was the signal for deafening cheers. A few introductory remarks were made by Father Riley, after which Bishop Bayley himself addressed the assemblage, thanking those present for the very cordial welcome home had received and expressive of his gratification to be once more among his children and the people of Newark. He was glad, no said, to be again with not only his Catholic fellow citizens, but his Protestant, from whom he had always received the immost kindness. Considering that it was entirely an impromptu affair the demonstration was a most fattering success and fully demonstrated the immense popularity of the present Bishop of Newark.

THE COLD SPRING MURDER.

The Robbery of the Bank Teller-Red Pepper as an Instrument in Crime-Examination of William Conroy at Newburg-Trumpbour's Confession-Interesting Details-"A Clean Breast of It."

The circumstances of the arrest of William Conresulting in murder at Cold Spring, on July 27, were given in Tuesday's HERALD. On Tuesday afternoon the prisoner was brought before Recorder Shafer, of Newburg, for examination. The people were represented on this occasion by Charles T. Titus, for the District Attorney, and J. H. Drake appeared on behalf of the prisoner. At two o'clock was brought into court. He is about twenty-four years of age, and was flashily dressed. His counte-nance wears a kind of dare-devil expression, very weil comporting with his reputation in Cold Spring and Newburg. In the court room were Conroy's mother, a widow lady resi-ding in Cold Spring; William A. Browning, the ding in Cold Spring; William A. Browning, the bank teller, whom Trumpbour attempted to rob; "Lib" Millspaugh, Conroy's "girl," and a number of the ci izens or Cold Spring interested in bringing to justice the murderer Trumpbour, and Conroy, the alleged accessory to the robbery and resulting murder. Kate Moore, TRUMPBOUR'S MISTRESS, and a former inmate of a low haunt in Newburg, where Trumpbour and Conroy are supposed to have

where Trampbour and Conroy are supposed to have concocted the scheme of robbing the bank teller, was the first witness called on behalf of the people. She testified that she went to live at Charles Smith's, Newburg, the place frequented by Trump-bour and Conroy, in May last; stayed there about two months; saw Conroy there; he used to go with Trumpbour more than with any one else; they roomed together at Smith's; they were together the day before the murder at Cold Spring-went to that place together; saw Conroy have a pistol at Smith's; this was the day before they went to Coad Spring; saw him take out old cartridges; can't say whether he put anything back into the pistol or not. Ithe girl had previously stated in a deposition that the pistol with which the murder was committed was furnished to Trumpbour at this place]; saw Conroy on the evening of the day when the ROBBERY AND MURDER. Were committed; I was bad friends with Trumpbour at one time before this, and Conroy told me I ought to keep good friends with him, as there was some money coming to him.

The cross-examination of this witness was waived by the defence.

at Cold Spring, was next sworm and testified to the fact that Conroy had been in his place about an hour on the morning of the murder, and had left there twenty minutes before the attack was made by Trumpbour on the bank teller; that he went in a direction opposite to that of the place where the attack was made; that Conroy was in the habit of frequenting his place; that there was nothing strange or unusual in Conroy's conducts at this time.

Join D. Gilmore, a hotel keeper at Cold Spring, was sworn for the people, and testified to Conroy's conduct at the time of the examination of Trumpbour before the Justice of the Peace, just after the shooting of the coachman Jones; Conroy did not appear to be greatly excited there.

WILLIAM A. BROWNING, teller of the Fishkill National Bank, whom Trumpbour had attempted to rob, was next put upon the stand, and testified as follows:—Reside in Dutchess county; am teller of the Fishkill National Bank; the day I was assaulted in Cold Spring I went to that place from Fishkill village; this was on the 27th day of July last; I reached there at twenty-one minutes past nine in the morning; this was on Wednesday; I went on my usual business—always went on Wednesdays—to receive deposits from customers, consisting of past nine in the morning; this was on Wednesday; I went on my usual business—always went on Wednesdays—to receive deposits from customers, consisting of Money, Checks and notes, there being no bank in Cold Spring; when I was attacked I was,entirely through with my business; my collections on that day amounted to $10,000, about $2,000 to $3,000 being in bank bills; it was all in a satchel which I carried in my hand; I was attacked a few minutes after twelve; I was standing in Main street, with my face towards the railroad, on Petton's corner; I did not know the man who attacked me; he came from an opposite direction from the way I was looking, in my eyes, and at the same time grabbed my satchel. I saw no other person standling about; I clung to the satchel down the steps and across the sidewalk; in the gutter I was compelled to relinquish my hold by his pulling the satchel from me; I ran after him and cried, "Stop their;" I ran as far as a wooden pump in fair street, then my eyes hurt me so bad that I had to stop;

then other persons commenced pursuit; some of the red pepper was taken from Trumpbour's pocket after he was arrested; I should think he tinew a large handful in my face; it was a fact generally known in Cold Spring that I came down there every Wednesday to make collections for deposit in our bank; I am not acquainted with Conroy, though I have seen him before; I made a complaint against John Trumpbour (or rather John Smith, as he then casted himself) after the murder and attempted rebotery.

The cross-examination of this witness elicited the fact (for the first time on this inquiry, though known to a lew previously) that Trumpbour has made

A wkitten Confession.

Mr. Whitely, recalled, testified to having seen without reference to this confession.

Mr. Whaley, recalled, testified to having seen also that his affidavit, on which the warrant for the arrest of Conroy had been based, had been made without reference to this confession.

Mr. Whaley, recalled, testified to having seen Trumpbour in the Justice's office after his ARREST FOR THE MURDER.

At this point the counsel for the people rested his case, and the prisoner's counsel, not being ready with his testimony, the further hearing of the case was adjourned to Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock.

Itseems that the warrant on which Conroy was arrested specified charges of complicity in both the robbery and murder which have been referred to, but on the circumstances of the case being further inquired into the old case was dropped and a new warrant, charging Conroy with complicity in the attempted robbery alone, was issued and Conroy is now held on that charge.

It is asserted by parties who claim to have seen TRUMPBOUR'S CONFESSION that it gives a detailed statement of the circumstances preceding and attending the perpetration of the crimes for which he is held for trial; that he admits the concocting of the piot in Newburg, and implicates certain parties in it, and that, in short, he plicates certain parties in it, and that, in short, he has "made a clean breast" of the whole affair. It is also stated that the attack on the bank teller was a mistake, the person whom Trumpbour and his pals intended to rob being the cashier of the Cold Spring foundery, and that Trumpbour was mistaken for him. But this latter rumor lacks confirmation.

Since Conroy's arrest the Newburg detectives have entertained suspicions that he was concerned in the recent burglary and murder in Binghamton, N. Y., and the authorities there were telegraphed to for a description of the burglar who made his escape, the other two burglars engaged in the crime having been drowned. But the answer came that no description could be furnished. The clerk who survived had not seen the burglars with sufficient distinctness to be able to describe any one of the three.

CAPTURE OF A HORSE THIEF.

A notorious horse thief named John Jerome Hays, who has recently served a term in Sing Sing Prison for horse stealing, arrived in that village on Sunday evening, driving a stylish trotter, to which was at tached a light wagon. Having pulled up at the boarding house of his former prison keeper, Benjamin Loughiin, Hays informed him that he had called to fulfil his promise made while in prison, namely, to present him with a horse, and added that, as he had paid forty dollars for the wagon, Loughlin might had paid forty collars for the wagon, Loughlin might take it by handing him that amount. In order to secure his man Loughlin paid him ten dollars on account for the wagon and then notined the authorities, who at once arrested Hays on suspicion of having stolen the property. A paragraph having appeared in the Herald of yesteriay, setting forth the theft of of a valuable horse from a livery stable at Mount Vernon, Westchester county, the police of Sing Sing, acting on the ciuc, sent a despatch to the last named village, which brought on the livery stable keeper, who fully identified the property. The accusad was subsequently committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury.

A QUEER POLICE BLUNDER.

Yesterday morning officer Andrew appeared in the Fombs Police Court with a prisoner named John Cox, whom Sergeant Reid, of the Twenty-seventh precinct, charged on the retuens with petty larceny and carrying on his person a concealed weapon. It subsequently transpired that there was no complaint against Cox for the charge of petty larceny and that the weapon, which was a short stick with a lump of lead on one end, was lound, after his arrest, locked up in Cox's trunk at his boarding house. Under these circumstances Judge Hogan discharged the accused. Cox had been locked up at the Central Office.

SICK IN A GARRET.

Maria Walker, a widow, only a little time in this country, who lives with her three daughters at No.

426 East Sixteenth street, was found last evening to to be entirely destitute. One girl was dangerously sick, but the others would not let her be taken to the hospital. The case was reported to the Commissioners of Charities and Correction.

DRIVEN TO DEATH.

The Last Suicide—A Man Calls His Wife and Children About Him-Shakes Hands With Them-Bids Them Goodby and Shoots Himself Through the Head.

Though of late two or three suicides are reported

Though of late two or three suicides are reported almost every day, with murders, shooting and stab-bing ad libitum, and with almost every variety of accessories, few have occurred which have brought to light such a sad and touching story as that which hangs about the shooting of George Au last night, in the tenement house No. 11 Ludlow street. A year and a half ago Au, who was then a hard-working, sober man, became quite ill from a malady of which, till then, he was entirely ignorant—con-sumption. He applied to different doctors in vain, and becoming too weak to do any sort of work he grew melancholy, and at last desperate. In these moods he began occasionally to drink, and often afterwards he drank to excess. Then he would tell his wife and friends that he could no longer work; that he suffered, and he would take his own life and rid them of what was not only no longer a support, out a burden. The first conversation of this kind which attracted any particular attention took place about six months ago. Three or lour days ago these complaints and threats of suicide were renewed. He had by this time grown quite weak, and no hope was entertained that he could live longer than two or three months threats of suicide were renewed. He had by this time grown quite weak, and no hope was entertained that ne could live longer than two or three months at most.

Yesterday afternoon, about half-past four o'clock, he called his children from the street, where they were playing, up to the little room on the third floor of the tenement house, where he sait with his wife, and turning to them he said, "I want to bid you good by. I am very sick and very weak. I suffer I can work no longer, and I am only a burden to your mother, who must work very hard to support you and herselt." He then shook hands with each one tenderly, from the eldest of the three, a little girl of eight years, to the baby, only thirteen months old, and bade them goodby. His wife endeavored to get to the door and give an alarm, still not thinking there would be an absolute attempt by the husband to kill himself; but he stopped her, saying:—"I don't want you to go out; I want you to stay here. I do not want you to call any one from the street up here. I want no one now but my wife and children." He shook hands with her as he said this, then turning away to the door of the closet, a few feet from where she stood, he drew a six-cnamber revolver from his pocket, deliberately placed the muzale to his forehead and fired. He fell back in the closet instantly killed. The ball passed clean through his head. The wife ran out and notified her sister's family on the floor below, and theyinotified the police. In the meantime, with the assistance of a neighbor, the body was dragged out from the closet to the centre of the floor. There it lay alone last night when at a late hour a Herald reporter visited the sessene. It was a ghastly sight. He was a light-haired, bite-eyed man, slender, and about five feet eight inches in height, wore a mustache and chin whiskers, and is forty-nine years of age. He is dressed only in gray mixed pants, with white shirt, the latter covered with gore. The blood had been washed from his face, and only on his forehead, where a great b

Manufacturers.

A splendid chance at West Flushing.

Attention is invited to several choice Plots of Ground, which are peculiarly adapted for the erection of unobjectionable manufactories. The plots will only be sold for desirable kinds of manufacturing, such as are of a character to benefit the place and not in jure the neighborhood.

The advantages of manufacturing many kinds of goods at a short distance from the city are well understood by the large featern manufacturers, and there is no pretiter location in the vicinity of New York, where high land, certain to increase rapidly in value, with excellent railroad and express accommodations, can be had as cheaply.

In order to encourage the erection of large works at once the undersigned will negotiate with parties upon an extra liberal basis, which will be made knewn upon application.

Important to Lumber Dealers

Lumber Dealers
and Brick Manufacturers.

Materials of all kinds used in erecting buildings will be received in payment for choice building pious at West Flushing.

They must be supplied at the regular market prices, as all the plots are sold at uniform cash rates.

Important to those who desire to invest money safely and have it increase rapidly.

No finer village exists within 100 miles of New York than West Flushing.

Investments in land are always the safest to make, and Investments in land are always the safest to make, and around New York City they will never fall to pay handsomely. In proof of this, reflect upon the growth of this city and suburbs within your own memory—what you might have bought lots up town for 15 years ago, and what they are worth to-day.
